CABLE LETTER.

The Cesarewitch—Fast Atlantic Mail Service—Copyright—A New Canadian Artist.

Relations Between the Kaiser and the Czar—The Elbe Disaster.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Newmarket trainers who have candidates for the Cesarewitch stakes, which event will be run next week, hailed the change of weather with delight, the heat during the early part of the week being intense. The race promises to be most intensely interesting, and will be witnessed by the Prince of Wales and all the prominent sportsmen of the United Kingdom. Cesarewitch betters persistently rally around the royal colors of the Prince of Wales' Florizel II. Among the starters will be Mr. Charles D. Rose's St. Hilaire and Mrs. Langtry's chestnut filly, Bridges of the Sea, which are thought to have a good chance of capturing the stakes, while Banquet II, formerly the property of Mr. Michael F. Dwyer, now owned by Capt. Aiken, carrying the very light weight of 58 pounds against 125 pounds which Florizel II must run under, finds some favor. When they ran in the race for the Newmarket Cup, Florizel II and Banquet II had the same handicap. Sir Charles and Lady Tupper returned recently to the Canadian office from a long visit to Scotland, from which Sir Charles Tupper (who never has been really well since the death of Sir John Thompson) derived much benefit. In an interview upon the death of the secretary of state for the colonies, Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, regarding the ATLANTIC FAST MAIL PROJECT, Sir Charles Tupper said: "After seeing Mr. Chamberlain on the subject I wrote him a letter dealing with the matter, making certain proposals, and then went away to Scotland. Now that I have returned Mr. Chamberlain is away from town, and will not come back until the end of the present month, when a decision will probably be given." Referring to the copyright question, Sir Charles Tupper said he could not discuss the matter now as Mr. Newcombe had returned to Canada to report progress to the Canadian authorities. Although the authorities at Ottawa could not discuss the subject with private individuals, he continued that the matter was still being considered between Canada and the Imperial government, and no doubt Mr. Hall came will have an opportunity to state his case. Miss Florence Carlyle, who will show several paintings at the forthcoming exhibition at Paris is still "an American artist." Though a grand niece of Thomas Carlyle, she was born in Canada and has passed most of her life in Woodstock, a town of Western Ontario. Long before she had any artistic training, some of her paintings, then only flowers, attracted the attention of Prince Louis. This led to her being sent to Paris, where she has since prosecuted her studies under Delaunay, Lefebvre and Fleury. THE KAISER AND CZAR. The Emperor William being away from the capital political dullness reigned during the past week in Berlin. The Bundesrat, however, meets next week, and the agricultural depression will be one of the first subjects discussed by that body. The agrarians have been very active throughout the summer. In a speech this week Von Kabinz, their leader, declared that his grain monopoly bill would come before the Reichstag during the coming session. He added that he expected something seriously helpful would be done. The agrarians have made alliances and have understandings with the whole of the Right and part of the Centre party, and think they will have a majority this time. The chief subject of recent speculation has been the contents of Emperor William's letter to the Czar, and as to whether it is political or not. Count von Moltke, the Emperor's aide de camp, who took the railway to the Emperor of Russia, has started on his return to Berlin with an autograph letter from His Russian Majesty. The Count was everywhere received in the kindest manner. In an audience which he had with the Czar the latter spoke in a flattering manner of the Emperor of Germany. According to an account published to-day the Emperor's letter to the Czar was nothing more than an invitation for him to be present at a shooting party to be held at Trakenen, near Eydtkuhnen, on the Russian frontier, and the Emperor Nicolas is said to have replied that his decision would depend upon the health of the Empress, who is on the eve of her accouchement. In any case it was added that the meeting would be fairly private. In the meantime Emperor William has been having good sport in East Prussia, and on his return is going deer stalking on Prince Hatzfeldt's estate in Silesia. A suite of rooms in the castle of Trachenberg is now being especially furnished for His Majesty. THE "ELBE" DISASTER. A despatch received from Amsterdam says that the action of the North German Lloyd's S.S. Co. against the owners of the British steamship Craithie, which sank the Elbe in collision, early during the present year, was commenced there to-day. The plaintiffs contended that no watch was kept on board the Craithie, and had the latter altered her course the collision would have been avoided. Counsel for the owners of the Craithie claim that there was no proof that she came into collision with the Elbe or that even the watch kept on board the last named steamship was inadequate. Finally representatives of the owners of the Craithie claimed counter damages against the North German Lloyd's S.S. Co. for the detention of the British steamship at Rotterdam after she had put in there, some time after the collision. Judgment will be delivered on November 6.

of France and many foreign countries. An immense concourse of people lined the streets through which the funeral procession passed, although the sky was heavy and a downpour of rain threatened. The procession arrived at Notre Dame cathedral at noon and shortly afterwards the funeral service commenced.

A telegram to the Times from Cienfuegos, Cuba, details an interview with Marshal Campos, in which he says he believes it will be the best course to continue the present humane methods toward the rebels, granting pardon to all who present themselves voluntarily. He will not take personal command of the troops on the field unless the rebels concentrate in great strength. A dispatch from Havana says it is reported at Havana that the Spanish cruiser Gonde de Venadito, which was sent to the assistance of the wrecked cruiser Cristobal Colon, has been lost. It should be added, however, that the official dispatches received to-day make no mention of any such report, and therefore it is hoped that the news is not true. Dispatches from the island of Crete show the situation of affairs there to be very unsettled. Many murders have been committed and robberies and other acts of lawlessness are reported to be of frequent occurrence. As a result the governor of Crete has offered to resign and the matter is now understood to be under consideration.

SEALING LAW RELAXED.

Under the New Act Vessels Cannot Be Arbitrarily Sent Home Upon Mere Suspicion.

Application of Extreme Penalty to Follow Only Wanton Violation of the Statute.

The hardships to sealers which have been experienced under the Imperial act of 1892, and particularly exemplified in the recent cases of the Beatrice and E. B. Marvin, will not be so likely to occur under the operation of the amended law, the Seal Fisheries (North Pacific) Act, 1895, which was one of the first measures enacted under the new Salisbury administration, but could not be put into effect in time to govern this season's operations. The text of the act has just been received, with a despatch to Lord Aberdeen from Mr. Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, who says: "In framing this act Her Majesty's government endeavored as far as possible to meet the objections urged by your ministers to the act of 1893, which were conveniently summarized in the draft bill which accompanied the minute of council of the 21st of February. You will observe that the act continues in force for the present the order in council of 1894 issued under the act of 1893, but a new order in council, embodying the necessary changes, is under consideration, and copies will be forwarded to you as soon as it has been passed." The new act is to remain in force for the next two seasons, until December 31, 1897, and no longer, unless continued by the Imperial parliament. The law of 1893 said that any vessel guilty of violation of any provision of the entire act "shall be forfeited," but the new act modifies the clause to "shall be subject to forfeiture" and stipulates this punishment, not with respect to all the provisions of the act, but simply for the offence of violating the main section (1), which forbids sealing during the close season or in prohibited waters. Offences such as omitting to enter in the log the particulars of sealing operations are punishable by fine, besides the penalties prescribed in the merchant shipping act. Since 1893 any officer of the British or United States cruisers alike has been authorized to stop and examine any British ship "if in his judgment the ship is being or is preparing to be used or employed in contravention of this section." The new provision permits examination only when the officer "has reasonable cause to believe"—not that the vessel is preparing to violate the law, but that it "has been" illegally used. The text of this clause is (U. S. officers having the same authority at the British): "(3) Where any commissioned officer in full pay in the naval service of Her Majesty the Queen has reasonable cause to believe that, during the period and in the seas specified in an order in council under the act, any British ship has been used or employed in contravention of this act, or of any regulation made thereunder, he may stop and examine her, and detain her or any portion of her equipment or any of her crew, and may seize the ship's certificate of registry." The act of 1893 made it imperative to order a ship home if charged with any violation of the law, but for the future the season's operations are to be terminated only "if the ship appears to him to be liable to forfeiture," and as the word "may" is used in place of "shall" the officer will have, it would appear, authority to allow a vessel to complete her season's operations and then answer to any doubtful charge—such for instance as that preferred against the Marvin.

The clause in the act of 1893 placing upon the owner of the vessel the onus of proving that fishing or shooting implements or seal skins found on board in the close season or within prohibited waters have been illegally used or taken, is now omitted. A new clause says that this act "shall be in addition to and not in derogation of the provisions of the Behring sea award act, 1894."

CAPITAL NOTES.

Sir Julian Pauncefote Interviews the Government on Behring Sea Matters.

A British Columbian Likely to Be Named Commissioner—Ottawa's Population.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

OTTAWA, Oct. 5.—Sir Julian Pauncefote had a long conference with Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Sir C. H. Tupper and Hon. Mr. Costigan, to-day, on Behring sea matters. It is reported that a prominent British Columbian will be the Canadian representative on the commission. Many applications have been received for the position of aide de camp to General Gascoigne. Ottawa's population is 49,500, an increase of 1,775 since the last municipal census.

BELLA COOLA COLONY.

The Settlement Progressing—Road Extension Necessary—A Snow Fall—Visited by Bears.

BELLA COOLA, Sept. 20.—This colony is going on as usual with hard work on the wagon road. Rain has commenced to hinder some, but we hope to be able to connect the different sections, in charge of different foremen, and thus make a passable road for some distance up the valley, and thus be spared the terrible drudgery of last winter. An important fact is that Bella Coola is the only outlet for the Chilootin country. A herdman from there, who was seeking a market for his stock and who visited our colony, said that the Bella Coola valley was the only outlet to the sea for the whole of that district. The Indians from the upper country, who have been very numerous in this valley this summer, tell the same story. Mr. Nordeshaug and Mr. Robertson, who, with an Indian guide, made by instruction of Mr. Leech an exploring trip to the Solomon river, give a similar report as regards that part of the upper country. A trunk road (wagon road) must some time be built from this vast and rich district to the salt water, and the Bella Coola valley is the most natural and easy route for such a road. The money now expended on the wagon road in Bella Coola is not by any means expended for the colony only; but will be so much in advance when the trunk road is built. The Chilootin country is widely known for stock raising, and what the stock raisers need is a good road to the sea. The Bella Coola common school has been organized and Mr. I. Faugner, one of the colonists, is certificated and will teach for the first year. The tax collector is here performing his duty. He will in form of a voucher receive the $3 tax from every man who is on the pay list in Mr. Leech's office. It does us good to bear a small part of the pecuniary burdens of the province. We feel ourselves more at home. A quantity of snow has fallen on the mountain. The waters of the Bella Coola river are very low. Dog-salmon are filling every creek and d by stream so the bears have plenty of food. Grizzly and black bear are very numerous in this country. Two large grizzlies were recently killed by Indians near the Newwatum river. A colonist who was going up the valley to look after his garden near the same river met a big grizzly coming towards him with open mouth. He fired, the bear fell, but got up again and then fell. He rose again in redoubled fury, while by the man stood another grizzly of smaller size; the gun—a Colt's repeating rifle—got out of order, and the settler had to save himself by flight the best way he could. Another man sat on an elevated place and looked at a mother grizzly with her two cubs for nearly an hour. The beasts were picking berries. He made a growling noise when off went the silver tip with her cubs. Mountain goat are becoming more plentiful. Mr. P. J. Leech, P.L.S. was up the valley looking over the public works and visited at the same time the crew working in the Solomon river valley. C. S.

Quebec Legislature Called.

QUEBEC, Oct. 5.—The provincial legislature is called for Wednesday, Oct. 23, for dispatch of business.

Hon. Mr. Hart Not to Be Opposed.

KINGSTON, Oct. 5.—Dr. Smythe has refused to accept the Conservative nomination to contest the vacant seat against Hon. Mr. Hart. It is likely the latter will secure the seat without a contest.

THANKSGIVING FOR THE HARVEST

Special Services of Beauty and Interest Arranged for This Morning and Evening.

Children's Anniversary at the Centennial Church—Improvements at the First Church.

Harvest festival exercises are again the great attraction for to-day in a number of the Episcopal churches. At St. John's very especial pains have been taken with the decorations, which are this year more than usually tasteful and artistic, a great pyramid of grain and flowers near the main entrance being made a crowning feature worthy of the admiration it excites. The musical services and the sermons will be appropriate to the day, the latter being by the rector, Rev. Perival Jones, and the former being arranged as hereunder:

MATINS.
Venite (Chant) 10.00
Psalm 100 (Chant) 10.10
To Deum (Quadruple Chant) 10.20
Benedictus (Chant) 10.30
Responses—Ferial 10.40
Kyrie xliii Mercer 10.50
Gloria Tibi, etc.—Mercer 11.00
Celebration of Holy Communion.
Tallis

EVENSING.
Organ Prelude—"Concert Overture" 7.00
Procession Hymn 7.10
Special Psalms 7.20
Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis 7.30
Hymn—"To Thee, O Lord" 7.40
Offertory and Hymn 7.50
Evening Blessing 8.00
Old Italian Choral Benediction.

The services of the evening will be repeated on Tuesday at 8 o'clock, when the sermon will be preached by Rev. C. Ennor Sharpe, of St. Mark's. Equivalents.
Harvest festival services will also be held to-day at Metochia and at the church of the Holy Saviour, Victoria West, where the order of arrangements is the same for the evening as on Friday evening last. Rev. Canon Paddon preaches at 11 a.m., and in the afternoon there will be a special children's service.

At Christ church cathedral the order of service will be as usual, the Bishop occupying the pulpit in the evening; the harvest festival services at the cathedral are arranged to be held on Thursday evening next.
At St. James church there will be morning prayer and Holy Communion to-day at 11, Rev. W. D. Barber, of St. Saviour's, preaching; Rev. Canon Beaulieu will be the preacher in the evening.

For St. Barnabas the order of services for the day is also an exceptionally interesting one, as follows: Holy Eucharist, 8 a.m.; matins, 10.30 a.m.; Holy Eucharist (choral) with sermon by Rev. J. B. Haslam, priest in charge, 11.15 a.m.; children's harvest festival service, at which an address will be given by Rev. R. Bishop Perrin, and the members of the Sunday school as well as the little ones of the B. C. Protestant Orphanage will attend, 3 p.m.; evensong and sermon, 7 p.m.

To-day is children's day at the Centennial Methodist church, it being the anniversary of the Sunday school and preparations having been made to celebrate it as such in a striking and impressive manner. The church has been prettily decorated, and an immense platform erected upon which the little folk will have seats during all the services of the day. They will supply the music at both morning and evening services, and in the afternoon will present an extensive programme of a musical and literary character, interspersed with short addresses by prominent Sunday school workers. Rev. P. H. McEwen, of Emmanuel Baptist church, preaches the morning sermon, while the pulpit will be occupied in the evening by Rev. T. J. McCrossan, B.A., B.D., of the James Bay church.

At the Metropolitan church, Rev. Ralph W. Trotter, of Calvary Baptist church, will preach in the morning, while in the evening the pastor, Rev. Solomon Cleaver, will continue his addresses on "The Five Wounds," this being the third discourse of the series.

At the James Bay church, the pastor, Rev. T. J. McCrossan, B.A., B.D., will preach in the morning on the subject of "The Samaritan Woman," Mr. John Calvert filling the pulpit at evening services. There are no special announcements for the day at any other of the Methodist churches.

During the past month the exterior appearance of the First Presbyterian church has been greatly improved by the substitution of rustic work for the original rough-cast. The change is very much to the better although probably the day is not far off when a new church will grace the corner on which the present historic building stands, the first Presbyterian church erected in British Columbia. To-day's services will be conducted by Rev. A. B. Winchester, their order being as usual.

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian church the pastor, Rev. W. Leslie Clay, will conduct services at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m., the Sunday school exercises being at 2.30 in the afternoon. In the Central church, James Bay, there will be the usual services at 11 and 7 o'clock, the subject for the evening sermon being "Met on the Way"—being the first of a course of seven sermons on "A Wonderful Journey and its Results," by Rev. P. C. L. Harris, B.A.

No special announcements are made for the day by the pastors of St. Paul's church, Knox church, St. Columba's church, or Cedar Hill church.

At Calvary Baptist church the morning services will be conducted by Rev. Solomon Cleaver, of the Metropolitan Methodist church, while in the evening the pastor, Rev. W. Trotter, will take for his theme, "The Lord's Prayer and the Social Problem."

Mr. William Marchant will conduct the 11 o'clock services at Emmanuel church, and in the evening Rev. P. H. McEwen, the pastor, will discourse upon "What We Should Preach." The Sunday school and pastor's Bible class will be held at 2.30 in the afternoon, and at the close of the evening service the sacrament of communion will be administered.

Rev. J. Bushell conducts all services of the day at the Congregational church, Temperance hall, the subjects of the sermons being: "Kindly critics" in the morning, and "Christ's Influence" in the evening. The congregation is rapidly growing in numbers and the services are each week increasing in interest.

In the absence of the Bishop from the city, Rev. Joseph D. Wilson will preach at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. at the Church of Our Lord, Reformed Episcopal.

At St. Andrew's R.C. cathedral, services will be held throughout the day at the usual hours, the priests of the diocese officiating.

Mrs. Harris, of San Francisco, is announced to lecture this evening at the weekly public meeting of the Theosophical Society, at 28 Broad street, Williams block.

The British Columbia Society of Spiritualists have special services at 7.30 this evening, at Harmony Hall.

NEWS OF THE PROVINCE.

Fogs at Vancouver—Case Dismissed on Account of Sunday Technicality.

Deadman's Island, Vancouver—Rebuilding Brunette Sawmill—Chilliwack Fair.

(Special to the Colonist.)

VANCOUVER, Oct. 5.—The tug Leonora ran aground in False creek yesterday, but was safely got off. This makes five tugs that ran aground near the entrance of the harbor yesterday in the fog. On land it was a beautiful clear summer day, but a strip of bank of fog started at the narrow entrance and extended back for several miles. Through this it was almost impossible to navigate with safety. The bank of fog was unusually dense for five or six hours and could not be penetrated more than two or three feet with the eye. Some of the tugs that ran aground were injured and will have to undergo repairs.

The Vancouver Dramatic and Operatic Society have had a meeting, and have decided to produce Erminie. The opera will be put on about Christmas time. A dramatic piece may also be produced.

The St. Andrew's and Caledonia Society had their opening meeting of the season last night. The society will meet monthly hereafter.

The Vancouver Presbyterian met yesterday and discussed important matters connected with local missions.

The Ab Sam-Pittendrigh assault case has terminated very differently to what most people thought it would. Judge Bole has decided that as the information against the Chinaman was laid on Sunday and the warrant was issued on Sunday and the arrest made on Sunday there is no case. The accused was discharged. It will be remembered that Ab Sam was accused by constable Pittendrigh with attempting to kill him with an axe when he was serving a summons on him in the discharge of his official duty. In the trial one witness swore that the accused Chinaman was quiet, sober and industrious; another that the Chinaman was not shown his warrant, but was forcibly seized.

The Vancouver council recently protested by resolution against the use of Dead Man's Island for the purpose of a marine railway, one of their reasons being that a former provincial government had given Dead Man's Island to the city as part of the park. The petition was sent to the acting Premier, Col. Baker, who has sent a letter to the council in which it is stated that there are no government records indicating that Dead Man's Island had been given to Vancouver for their use as part of the park, and asking for copies of any correspondence between former government and a former council that might have taken place on the question. More than half the citizens of Vancouver believed that Dead Man's Island was practically at the disposal of the city. The matter will now probably be settled for all time.

It has been so difficult on many occasions to trace stolen goods among the second hand dealers that they have been notified that hereafter they must report to the city authorities every transaction in which money is loaned and the articles retained as pledges, with the amount advanced, together with the name and description of the parties who obtained the loan, etc. Every morning a policeman will visit the second hand stores for this information. This is a suggestion of the new chief, Mr. Ward.

WESTMINSTER, Oct. 5.—The trial of Walter Nicholl for housebreaking takes place on Monday next.

A. W. Prestley's trial has been postponed until the next assize.

Sixty thousand dollars' worth of Pitt Meadows debentures have been sold by Mahon, McFarlane & Mahon.

The wreck of the Brunette sawmill fire is being cleared away, and the rebuilding of the new mill will be started in about two weeks. The construction of the mill will be hastened, and for this purpose a large force of workmen will be employed. The new building will be of one story, and on account of the latest improved machinery used and the ease by which operations will be carried on without any upstairs work, the company will be able to turn out nearly as much work as before the fire.

The Chilliwack Agricultural Society had remarkably fine weather for their exhibition on Thursday and Friday, and the efforts of the officers to secure the success of the undertaking cannot be too highly commended. Professor Robertson, who was present, opened the fair with an address, which was highly appreciated by all who heard it. He mentioned that many people in the East are already in the habit of speaking of British Columbia as a place where big crops can be obtained, and also referred to the resources the province possesses in addition to its agricultural capabilities. The excellent quality of some of the butter then on exhibition was spoken of, and the prospects of preventing the sending out of the province so many thousands of dollars annually for the purchase of dairy produce were mentioned. He concluded a practical address with the expression of the hope that the people of B.C. will make more use of the department and officials in the future. He intimated that it was intended to send two men to the province next year to work in the interest of the farmers. There were in all 1,823 exhibits entered in which was a large number of imported cattle. The dairy prizes brought out some splendid factory and home made cheese and plenty of excellent butter. The fruit and grain were far above the average.

FORECLOSURE OF MORTGAGE.

Important Judgment by Mr. Justice Walkem in the Supreme Court.

Value of a Prior Unregistered Mortgage as an Equitable Security.

Hudson's Bay Company v. Kearns and Rowling. This action is one for the foreclosure of an equitable mortgage; and as the defendant Miss Kearns has allowed judgment to go by default, it has been continued against Rowling.

In July 1891, Miss Kearns being indebted to the plaintiffs agreed to secure them by a mortgage of certain lots belonging to her in Vancouver. She, accordingly, deposited her title deeds and certificate of title with the plaintiffs to enable their solicitor to prepare the mortgage; but owing to inadvertence on his part this was not done. However, as a matter of law, the deposit of the deeds with the plaintiffs for the purpose mentioned constituted an equitable mortgage. About fifteen months afterwards, namely, on the 22nd of October, 1892, Miss Kearns conveyed the fee of the same lots to Rowling for the sum of $300, which was subsequently paid. Rowling registered the deed the same day in the Vancouver land registry, not, however, as a deed in fee, but as a charge. The question to be decided is whether, under the circumstances which I am about to state, Rowling's registered charge is to be postponed to the plaintiffs' prior unregistered equitable security; for by sec. 35 of the act "No purchaser for valuable consideration of any registered real estate, or registered interest in real estate, shall be affected by any notice, express, implied or constructive, of any unregistered title, interest or disposition affecting such real estate other than a leasehold interest in possession for a term not exceeding three years, any rule of law or equity notwithstanding."

Rowling's account of the transaction is that about the 15th of October, 1892, Foster, a former partner of his, met him in Vancouver and told him that he had the lots for sale on behalf of Miss Kearns, and that as she was much in need of money he could have them for $300, although they were worth double that amount. Rowling being also of that opinion at once searched the title, and finding that Miss Kearns was registered as the owner in fee and that a certificate of title had been issued to her, accepted the offer verbally. No arrangement was made about payment of the purchase money, but next day, the 20th, Rowling gave Foster a three months' note for half of it.

The following extracts from the notes of Rowling's cross-examination will best explain what occurred at the time with respect to the title deeds:

"Q. Did you ask about the title deeds before you signed the note? A. Yes."

"Q. Did not the fact of the lots being so cheap, together with the fact of there being no title deeds, arouse your suspicion? A. They told me they had them, but in the office."

Some hours later Rowling called upon Miss Kearns and again asked her and Foster, who happened to be present, for the deeds and certificate, and was told that they had not got them; and, to quote from his evidence, "Miss Kearns said that night that she had no papers."

"A. What did she say about the certificate of title? A. I said there must be one in existence; she said she would get it for me."

"Q. You know the full value of a certificate and what it imports? A. Yes, sir."

"Q. Then you went and saw them together and the promise was made to you? A. Yes, that they would get the papers."

"Q. Nothing was said about where they were? A. No; they would not tell me where they were."

"Q. They said they could not give you the papers, and did not account for not having them, and you didn't ask them to? A. Yes, I asked them to."

"Q. What did they say? A. I said some one must have them; that the certificate must be in existence. 'Did you have it,' I said, 'in the land registry office?' 'No,' they said, 'it was not there.' I said some one must have them; I said to Miss Kearns, when could she have them; she said, 'In a few days.'"

"Q. How did you come to sign the second note of November 1 for the balance of the purchase money before she did get the certificate? A. I had agreed to give that for the lots anyway. I went and saw Mr. McPhillips after I signed the first note. He said he thought the claim was all right."

"Q. He thought you were safe in signing the notes? A. No. He did not know whether I had paid the whole or not."

"Q. I ask you why did you sign the second note without getting the title deeds? A. I had promised to pay that amount of money for the land."

"Q. And it made no difference about the title? A. Mr. McPhillips thought it was all right."

"Q. Did you tell him it was not forthcoming? A. Yes."

"Q. Do you mean to say you did not know there was something wrong? A. No."

"Q. And did you not get suspicious? A. I did not like not getting the things as they promised."

"Q. Then why did you not refuse to sign the second note? (No answer.)"

"Q. Why didn't you? You knew that that would save the Hudson's Bay Co. Even if you were right it would save them the amount of the second note. Why did you not refuse to sign the second note until you got those papers? A. I was advised by Mr. McPhillips."

"Q. Did Mr. McPhillips advise you to sign the second note before getting those papers? A. He didn't know anything about the second note."

"Q. Why did you not ask for advice as to whether you were safe in signing the second note or not? What is your answer? (No answer.)"

"Q. Have you any answer to make? A. I don't know why I did not ask him."

Further evidence shows that Rowling paid the notes - and that he did not know of the plaintiffs' claim until some time afterwards.

The above interview with Mr. McPhillips took place in his office on the 21st of October, seemingly, when Rowling gave instructions for the preparation of the deed from Miss Kearns to himself. Next day the deed was executed there by Miss Kearns, Rowling being present. Not a word was said at the time about the missing deeds and certificate. In short, according to Rowling's evidence, the last occasion on which either Miss Kearns or Foster was spoken to about them was on the evening of the 20th. The deed, as I have already stated, was registered

ed as a charge immediately after its execution

Twelve days afterwards, viz., on the 1st of November, Rowling gave the second note to Miss Kearns for the balance of the purchase money. It is manifest that he could not have been compelled to do so; and, further, that he would have been justified in taking steps to stop payment of the first note the day after he had given it, as he then knew from his vendor that the title deeds and certificate were not forthcoming. But he abstained from taking any such steps; and it would seem from this and other circumstances which I shall refer to presently, that he deliberately took the risk of purchasing what he knew was a bad title in the hope that he would, in some way or other, realize the profit which he must have expected from having got the lots at half their value. When giving his evidence he seemed to me to be shrewd and intelligent, but I had occasionally to call his attention to his unsatisfactory answers. He, personally, searched the title, and would, as he states, have completed the purchase without the aid of a solicitor, but for his failure to obtain "the certificate of title." He knew the value of that document, and was fully alive, as he states, to the importance of getting possession of both it and the title deeds, from having had previous land speculations. His case, therefore, is neither that of a purchaser ignorant of the requirements of the law—though ignorance might not excuse him—nor of one negligently overlooking them, but, in my opinion, is the case of a purchaser deliberately ignoring them. It is idle for him to say, as he has done, that during his negotiations with Miss Kearns and Foster he had no reason for doubting their honesty, for at the outset he detected them in a falsehood. For instance, before giving his first promissory note he inquired for the title deeds, and was told that "they had them, but not in the office"; whereas only a few hours later, at Miss Kearns' house, they told him "they hadn't them"; and when he naturally remarked "someone must have them," they did not deny it.

Moreover, Miss Kearns' promise that she would get them "in a few days" must have convinced him that she had not then the control of them, and have at least caused him to suspect that they were possibly in the hands of the unnamed person who had first offered, as Foster had told him, to give $300 for the lots. He must, consequently, have distrusted both of them from the beginning and placed no reliance on Miss Kearns' promise; and his actions show that this was so, for, without waiting the "few days" mentioned by her, he went next day to the solicitor who, eventually, prepared his conveyance, and told him that the title deeds "were not forthcoming," and thereupon, asked if he was safe in carrying out his agreement with her. He withheld the fact from the solicitor that he had just given a note for part of the $300 and might soon give another for the balance, and now states that he can give no reason for having done so. Indeed, he seems to have confided as little as possible about the transaction to the solicitor, and to have been content with his answer that "he thought the claim was all right"; but why the solicitor so advised him has not been explained. The explanation, however, lies in what occurred immediately afterwards; and I venture to think that that advice was for it was precisely followed, that a deed in fee should at once be procured from Miss Kearns, and that, as it could not, in the absence of the title deeds, be registered in the fee register, an application should be made to have it registered as a charge to the extent of $300, with a view of, at least, protecting Rowling against the possible loss of that amount (if he ever paid it) through a prior equity being discovered or a deed in fee from Miss Kearns to the person who had made the offer of $300 suddenly turning up. The application was accordingly made in the name of Mr. McPhillips' partner, in form D given by the statute. The charge having been registered the plaintiffs contend that the registration was illegal. That question I shall deal with presently when considering the provisions of the Registry act, for I am now dealing with Rowling's case as if the act had not been passed.

Worthington v. Morgan (16 Sim. 547) was a case of the foreclosure of an equitable mortgage created by a deposit of title deeds. Morgan, unaware of the deposit, took a legal mortgage and from ignorance of the law of real property omitted to ask for the deeds. In giving judgment, which was for the plaintiff, the court remarked: "In this country the title of chattels as was observed by Lord Eldon is evidenced by possession; but the title to land is evidenced by written instruments. Therefore it was the duty of Morgan, before he took his mortgage, to ask for the deeds; and if he had asked for them he would have learned that they were in the possession of persons who claimed a lien or charge upon the tenements for unpaid purchase money. And I think he must be taken to have had notice of those circumstances which, if he had not neglected his duty, would have come to his knowledge."

The present case is a much stronger one as against Rowling, for, as I have pointed out, he was not like Morgan, ignorant of the requirements of the law. Nor did he neglect to ask for the title deeds; but he abstained and as I think wilfully so after being distinctly told by the vendor at the outset that she had not got them, from insisting on their delivery or a reasonable excuse being given for their non-delivery; and he must have done so lest his prospective purchase should be jeopardized by his learning that the person who had the deeds was entitled to hold them.

In Hawitt v. Looemore (9 Hare, 458), the Vice-Chancellor thus summarizes the law: "1st. That a legal mortgage is not to be postponed to a prior equitable one upon the ground of his not having got in the title deeds, unless there be fraud, or gross and wilful negligence on his part. 2nd. That the court will not impute fraud or gross and wilful negligence to the mortgagee if he has bona fide inquired for the title deeds and a reasonable excuse had been given for the non-delivery of them; but, 3rd, that the court will impute fraud and gross and wilful negligence to the mortgagee if he omits all inquiry as to the deeds." Rowling's very limited inquiry cannot be considered an honest one or a fulfilment of his duty. It ceased, if I may so express myself, just where it should have begun, and was, in view of all the circumstances, incon-

SILLY SCHEMING.

The Winnipeg Nor'-Wester believes that the Greenway Government, in dealing with the School question, has in view the advantage of the Liberal party. It represents the Manitoba members of that party as saying "the Manitoba Grit politicians returned the Manitoba Government to power, and why should it not be utilized again to not only do duty at another election in Manitoba, but also do duty to divide the Conservative party at the next Dominion elections, and consequently be a material factor in assisting Mr. Laurier to the premiership?" But those who reason in this way forget that the Liberal party, so far as the question of denominational education goes, is formed of precisely the same elements as the Conservative party. Both parties contain a large number of the advocates of denominational education and the upholders of non-sectarian public schools. The former as a rule believe that the Manitoba minority have been badly used by the majority and that the grievance of which they complain should be remedied, and the latter are of opinion that non-sectarian public education is best for Manitoba and every other province in the Dominion, and that the Manitobans should be left to settle their educational difficulties in their own way without interference from the Federal Parliament.

That Mr. Laurier is perfectly well aware of this can be seen by the very cautious way in which he deals with the school question. He knows well that if he takes a decided stand on one side or the other he will alienate many who are now his political friends and it may be transform them into political opponents. If Mr. Greenway and his colleagues in the Government do not see this clearly they must be very short-sighted and very shallow-minded. They cannot expect to cause men who have strong convictions on the matter of education to change their minds. They would retain their views and act upon them quite as determinedly if Mr.
Laurier were Premier as they do now that Sir Mackenzie Bowell is leader of the Government. So the intriguing and scheming of the Greenway Government—if they are intriguing and scheming—go for nothing.
They cannot by keeping the question open and by opposing a reasonable compromise help Mr. Laurier or hurt Sir Mackenzie Bowell. This the Nor'-Wester sees clearly, for it says:

There is little doubt that if this question was approached in the proper spirit, a split intent on justice being done and regardful of the welfare of their common country by both parties to it, that a satisfactory solution would be soon arrived at.
This argument is already being used in support of Mr. Laurier's elevation to power.
A settlement would speedily be come to, it is said, when the political friends of Mr.
Greenway are in possession of the treasury benches of the House. But the return of Mr. Laurier to power is decidedly improbable. And does any one suppose, secretive and non-committal as Mr. Laurier may appear to be, that a Liberal Government led by Mr. Laurier and supported by Quebec Rouges of the Tarte school would abate one job or title of the claims already put forward for remedial legislation? Mr.
Laurier cannot conceal his hand altogether, much as he may endeavor to mystify the electors of Canada with graceful verbiage and pretty platitudes. A change of Government in the Dominion would not materially affect the school question.

If Mr. Laurier favored a compromise he would find the Liberal advocates of secular education very hard to deal with, and the Liberal believers in denominational education would refuse to act in opposition to their principles to please him, no matter how pretty he might talk.

The best thing that Mr. Greenway can do is to exert himself to the utmost to take the Manitoba school question out of Dominion politics altogether. He may not be able to do so, but if he is either patriotic or politic he will do his utmost to have the question settled within the province. By making it or keeping it a political shuttlecock for Dominion politicians to toss about he will certainly not improve Mr. Laurier's chances of success. He will rather make his success impossible.

NOT EXPLICIT ENOUGH.

Commenting upon the condition of the agriculturists of Great Britain, the London Standard in a recent issue said:

The time for mere talking has gone by.
Something will unquestionably have to be done. It is for ministers to say what measures they think best calculated to avert the great calamity with which we are threatened. The country has full confidence in Lord Salisbury's statesmanship, and will be ready to listen with the greatest respect to any plan which he proposes.
But mere palliatives will not be of the slightest use. The evil has gone too far.
When a man is hovering between life and death, it is useless to give him ginger beer.
The farmers will expect from the Government something stronger than that; and, unless they get it, very many of them will soon cease to be farmers.

What was the Standard hinting at?
What is the measure required to relieve agricultural distress which is not a mere palliative? What is the stimulant that the industry hovering between life and death needs? What is the strong remedy which the farmers expect which is to save them from utter ruin?

THE INFERIOR RACES.

Every man of thought and intelligence must at some time or other have wondered how it is that contact with civilization has not improved to a greater extent than it has the so-called inferior races. He has seen the aboriginal inhabitants of countries settled by civilized men in some cases absolutely degenerating, and in other cases dying out.
What has civilization, for instance, done for the Indians of North America or the aborigines of the South Sea Islands and Australia? He is puzzled to answer the question satisfactorily. He will have to admit that, whatever the Indian races were when America was discovered, they are now not very noble specimens of humanity.

Some who have considered this question have, perhaps hastily, come to the conclusion that there are some races of men who are civilizable and some that are not. They contend that the uncivilizable nations when they come in contact with civilization eagerly adopt its vices, but are not either intellectually or morally strong enough to learn and to practise its virtues or to resist its peculiar temptations. The consequence is that the exotic vices in time prove their ruin.

This very interesting question was discussed vigorously and thoroughly at the late meeting of the British Association
Professor W. M. Flinders Petrie,
D. C. L., president of the Section Anthropology, delivered an address on the fundamental problems of race and civilization, in which he dealt with the attempts that have been made and are being made to improve and elevate the uncivilized races, in a trenchant manner and one which is not likely to meet with the approval of a great many benevolent and well-meaning people.
The Professor, in the course of his remarks,
said:

"No change is legitimate or beneficial to the real character of a people except what flows from conviction and the natural growth of the mind. And if the imposition of a foreign system is injurious, how miserable is the forcing of a system such as ours, which is the most complex, unnatural and artificial that has been known; a system developed in a cold country amid one of the hardest, least sympathetic and most self-denying and calculating of all people of the world. The result is death; we make a dead-house and call it civilization. Scarcely a single race can bear the contact and the burden. And then we talk complacently about the mysterious decay of the savages before white men."

According to this learned man's theory
the inferior races are not only not civilized by their intercourse with white men, but become depraved and weakened by it. The cause of this is that we attempt to force our system upon them without taking into consideration the nature and the antecedents of the people with whom we have to deal.
We hurt them rather than help, because our method of teaching is bad, and because their minds have not been prepared to receive the ideas that we endeavor to force into them.
The Professor, after showing the effect which intercourse with Europeans has had on the mind of the native Egyptian, goes on to say:

"What then, it may be asked, can be done to educate other races? How can we benefit them? Most certainly not by Europeanizing them. By real education leading out the mind to a natural and solid growth much can be done; but not by enforcing a mass of accomplishments and arti-ficialities of life. Our bigoted belief in reading and writing is not in the least justified when we look upon the mass of mankind.
The exquisite art and noble architecture of Mykenae, the undying song of Homer, the extensive trade of the Bronze Age, all belonged to people who never read or wrote. The great essentials of character—moderation, justice, sympathy, politeness and consideration, quick observation, shrewdness, ability to plan and pre-range, a keen sense of the uses and properties of things—all these are the qualities on which I value my Egyptian friends, and such qualities are what should be evolved by any education worth the name. The greatest educational influence, however, is example. It is obvious when we see how rapidly the curses of our civilization spread among those unhappily subjected to it.
The contact of Europeans with lower races is almost always a detriment, and it is the severest reflection on ourselves that such should be the case."

This is severe, but it is unfortunate that so much of it should be true. It is a reproach to civilized men, and particularly to men who profess and call themselves Christians, that uncivilized men and heathens are so often made worse rather than better by their intercourse with them.

The discussion which followed the reading of Professor Petrie's paper must have been most interesting, for the meagre report of it that has reached us contains many very valuable and edifying facts. The wide tolerance of the members of the Association is somewhat remarkable. They hold that there is something good in men of all races, and they had something to say in extenuation of the most barbarous and horrible practices of barbarians. One of them went so far as to confess that he "thought there was something to say in favor of cannibalism." It came out in the discussion that the Dutch were most successful in dealing with uncivilized men. Since they had established their rule in the islands of the Indian Ocean and New Guinea "the population of the districts had doubled, if not trebled, and in Java the proportion of population was 1,000 to the square mile." This is a remarkable exception. The discussion is not calculated to increase the self-esteem or the self-sufficiency of the civilized nations upon whom the duty of instructing and elevating the barbarous races under their rule devolves.

REFUTED.

The Canadian Gazette says:

The refutation of the baseless charge brought against Canadian cheese by the North British Agriculturist has been complete, thanks to the energetic action of the High Commissioner and the Dominion Minister of Agriculture in setting the facts in their true light before the British public.
The cablegrams from Ottawa left no doubt of the impossibility of adulteration, and we understand that the North British Agriculturist—admitting the entire inaccuracy of its assertion—is this week fully withdrawing the charge, and acknowledging its error.
It was, it will say, of the United States cheese that it was thinking when it spoke of adulteration with oleomargarine.

Oct. 17—Real estate. H. Cuthbert & Co.

An important auction sale of furniture and effects will be held at our salerooms on Tuesday, by H. Cuthbert & Co. The sale will include some very desirable furniture that must be sold to make room for a large sale, and very useful horse and road cart. A consignment of fire hose will be sold, also a choice collection of plants.

One of the finest building sites in the city, situated on the corner of Pandora Avenue and Cook street, will be offered at auction by W. T. Hardaker, at his rooms, Douglas street, at 2 o'clock to-morrow (Monday) also a good lot on Bay street, near Cedar Hill Road. The sale will commence sharp on time; those wishing to secure a bargain will do well to attend.

THE CITY.

THERE will be a meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association on Tuesday at 2:30 p.m., for the election of officers.

JOHN GREEN, who got drunk on the steamer Princess Louise on the Port Angeles excursion Friday, was yesterday fined in the provincial police court $10 and costs as a warning that people cannot get drunk and wear the pleasure of other passengers on excursion trips.

YESTERDAY afternoon, as Dr. Davis was driving down Johnson street, above Cook, the pole of his buggy broke, the result being that the Doctor was thrown to the ground, his horses tearing down the street like mad things, leaving the vehicle and its driver behind them.

THE annual general meeting of the Victoria Liberal-Conservative Association is to be held next Saturday evening at the Association rooms in Adelphi hall, corner of Government and Yates streets. The programme includes the election of officers and the transaction of general business of considerable importance.

CONSIDERABLE annoyance was caused last night to passengers on a tram car bound for the San Francisco steamer at the outer wharf by a drayman delaying the car by refusing to move his vehicle sufficiently far from the track to allow a free passage. Complaints are made that cars are frequently delayed by a similar cause.

THE funeral of Ernest Lane took place yesterday from his parents' residence, Hillside avenue, in the presence of a large number of sympathizing friends. Rev. S. Cleaver conducted the services there and at Ross Bay cemetery, where the remains were laid to rest. The following young gentlemen acted as pallbearers: F. White, M. Jewell, J. Burgess, F. Waller, C. Steers and P. Winnett.

THE first of the winter series of popular Saturday night concerts was given in Y.M.C.A. hall last evening, the programme presented containing the names of such famous entertainers as Mr. Noel H. Barker, Miss Strachan, Mr. A. Wheeler, Mrs. Clyde, Mr. J. Irwin, Miss Wolf and Miss and Master Houghton. A five-part dialogue, "Mr. Jones Jones," brought the entertainment to a close.

THE Local Council of Women of Victoria and Vancouver Island will hold their monthly meeting to-morrow (Monday) in the city hall at 2:30. The meeting is called a week earlier than usual, owing to the near approach of the annual meeting, at which Lady Aberdeen will preside. As the meeting to-morrow is of special importance, all presidents and representatives of federated societies are urged to attend.

THE lecture at the Synagogue on Tuesday evening by Miss Frank should not be forgotten by those who can find pleasure in being placed in touch with the lofty thoughts of a woman animated by the desire of drawing people into higher planes of life. She possesses the attributes of true genius in that she has the faculty of expressing deepest thoughts with a simplicity and directness that appeal to all.

THE funeral of the unfortunate bluejacket Blakett, who was killed by tramcar No. 7 on Friday evening, has been arranged to take place on Tuesday next, the interment being at the naval cemetery. The verdict of the coroners jury who yesterday heard the evidence in connection with the terrible affair, was that the tragedy was the result of accident and that no imputation of carelessness rested upon the tramway people.

ALL who attended the Harvest Home social at Metcheson hall, on Friday evening—and there were many Victorians among the number—agree in pronouncing the affair delightful and enjoyable in every particular. The hall, which has recently been enlarged and furnished with a dining-room extension, was appropriately decorated with flowers and cereals, and the concert programme was thoroughly in keeping with the occasion. After the concert supper was served—pheasants, grouse, etc., of course having their place on the well filled tables—and afterwards dancing claimed its devotees for several happy hours.

THE Northwest Baptist convention of Western Washington and British Columbia holds its annual meeting in Victoria this year from October 10 to 14 inclusive. Over a hundred delegates are expected, to meet in Calvary Baptist church, the opening session being held at 10 o'clock on Thursday morning. The home mission board of the convention which has the distribution of the home mission funds meets on Wednesday evening to make the various appropriations and to transact other routine business. ACCORDING to a resolution passed at the last meeting of the Agricultural Association Mr. J. Savannah has been informed that the oversight of his display at the exhibition has been rectified and the judges have awarded him first prize and a diploma.

THE ladies of St. Andrew's (R.C.) cathedral are preparing for a sale of work to be held in Institute hall, on Wednesday, the 23rd instant. The evening entertainment will consist of a bluejackets' outland drill, by 14 young ladies (in costume), under the direction of Mr. J. Mellon.

THE Victoria Building Society has now a total of $159,000 on investment, the 47th appropriation, of $4,000, having been drawn last evening by Mr. Joseph Levy, the holder of shares 140, A., B., C. and D. A committee composed of Messrs. J. Holland, John Taylor and M. McGregor, conducted the drawing.

At A.O.U.W. hall last evening the second production of "Hazel Kirke" was given by the Victoria Dramatic Club to the thorough satisfaction of the attending audience. Each of the parts was handled admirably, Mrs. W. M. Chapman's Hazel Kirke being in particular a finished and acceptable study of an exacting but very charming stage character. The club, which is a purely amateur organization, expect to have a new play to offer for the entertainment of the public monthly during the winter season.

VAGRANCY cases were the only ones before the city police court yesterday, the charge against Fred Wilson and Harry Miles coming up on remand, and Reub. Young having been arrested after spending a night in a stable on Vancouver street. Wilson and Miles will be remembered as two members of a tough gang who the police considered should be behind bars for the safety of the community; they took advantage of the adjournment to leave town. Young is not a hard case by any means; in fact he appears to be unfortunate only in being unable to obtain work. In the event of this being found to be correct, the information will be withdrawn.

DOCTORS IN COUNCIL.

Annual Meeting of the Medico-Chirurgical Society and Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the Victoria Medico-Chirurgical Society was held in the Philharmonic hall on Friday night, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Dr. G. L. Milne; vice-president, Dr. J. D. Holmcken; and secretary-treasurer, Dr. Fraser.

After the election of officers and usual routine business, Dr. Milne gave a short address on "Reminiscences of Victoria," extending over a period of fifteen years. He referred to his first impressions of Victoria and to the hospital facilities then existing as compared with those at present. He also spoke in complimentary terms of the members of the profession who were then in active professional work and who have since passed away—few now are left who at that time were in active practice. He also referred to the interest taken in political affairs by the medical men who first settled in the province, and who had done much in the way of law-making and governing the country. Among these he mentioned Dr. J. S. Holmcken, who had been a resident of this country since 1850, and who had taken an active part in legislative matters, being one of the three delegates to Ottawa to arrange the terms of confederation. Dr. Carroll, of Cariboo, was another delegate on the same mission. Another prominent member of the medical profession mentioned in this particular was Dr. J. C. Davie, senior, who was at the time of his death an active member of the legislature. Then there were Dr. Trimble who represented Victoria and was for a period speaker of the house of assembly, and Dr. Ash who for some time represented Comox, and was a man who identified himself with everything tending to the advancement of the province. Dr. Powell also took an active part in political affairs, and much of the early legislation which is still on the statutes was the result of their deliberations.

A vote of thanks was tendered Dr. Milne for his address. Other matters pertaining to the society and its work were discussed. The president informed the meeting that it was possible Dr. P. H. Bryce, secretary of the Ontario Board of Health, who is attending the American Public Health Association now in session at Denver, would visit the city next week, and might be induced to address the society on matters pertaining to public health.

SHIPS AND SHIPPING.

Arrival of the "Strathnevis" From the Orient
—Seizure by the Fishery Protection Officers.

An immense cargo of 5,000 tons miscellaneous freight arrived here aboard the Northern Pacific steamship Strathnevis last evening, that big freighter having left Hongkong on August 28 last and Yokohama on the 16th September—only three days after the last arrived Empress. She bears the marks of rough handling by the sea, received during a typhoon in Shanghai river on the 6th and 7th ultimo; and also had her full share of foggy weather on the trip, being thereby detained outside Cape Flattery for about four and twenty hours. The only interesting item of Oriental news brought by the Strathnevis is in regard to the departure of British and American officers, just before her sailing, from Foo Chow, to lend weight by their presence to the demand of the powers represented, for full satisfaction in connection with the Kucheng outrages. Of the cargo just received there are 350 tons for Victoria, inclusive of 80 tons for transshipment to San Francisco; as passengers the Strathnevis had 39 Japs and 12 Chinese.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

The Dominion steamer Quadra returned to port yesterday afternoon from a cruise to Baynes Sound, where all the buoys and beacons were overhauled and where necessary renewed. From Baynes Sound the steamer proceeded on fishery service to the Cowichan and Chemainus rivers, Joe Silvia, an Italian fisherman well known here, being caught red-handed at the entrance to the latter while engaged with six employees in taking salmon with a 1200-foot seine net. Capt. Walbran seized boat and net for flagrant violation of the fishery regulations, and with them returned to Victoria. Salmon are running freely along the whole of the inland coastal waters, especially in the vicinity of Cowichan bay and through Sanam Narrows to the northward.

ARRIVAL OF MAIL STEAMERS.

Owing to her being delayed by strong head winds en route from San Francisco it was 10 o'clock yesterday before the Umatilla proceeded to the Sound. She landed here 104 tons of freight and about a score of passengers. The saloon passengers who left Victoria for California last evening on the Walla Walla were as follows: Miss Nymman, Mrs. Nymman and children, Harry Barrett, W. G. Barrington, B. Taverner, A. Ellis, Mrs. J. Ford, Mrs. A. Magnuson, Mrs. A. Lewis and children, F. Murray and wife, C. Hishop, Thornton Fell, Miss R. Wolfenden and Mrs. G. F. Matthews and children.

MARINE NOTES.

M. T. Johnson has been made a member of the Victoria pilotage board. The steamer R. P. Rithet was down from Westminster yesterday to receive 5,000 empty salmon cases in transit from the North to the Fraser.

Through being delayed on the Sound, receiving freight, the City of Topeka did not arrive as expected yesterday. She calls at the ocean dock en route to Alaska at noon to-day.

The sealing schooner Annie E. Paint arrived home yesterday unpleasantly short of provisions, but with 2,022 skins below her hatchways, 723 of which were secured in Behring sea. She was picked up towards evening in the straits, just below Sooke, by the tug Daisy, which had been out all afternoon searching for her in the fog. The Paint is but 15 days from Unalaksa and for the past three days has been fog bound in the straits. While at Unalaksa she met quite a large fleet of homeward bound sealers, among them the Mary Ellen and Florence M. Smith, the former with a total catch of 1,400 and the latter 1,200 odd. The U. S. Behring sea patrol started home from Unalaksa on the 20th of last month.

FOSSIL FINDS.

Some Interesting Specimens Brought From the North by Dr. Newcombe.

For the past two months Dr. Newcombe has been "up North" on a scientific excursion, and he has now brought back with him a number of interesting specimens, some of which he will present to the Provincial museum. The party had a somewhat rough time of it, having to live upon fish a good part of the time, for food birds and game were not often obtained. In the neighborhood of Nimpkish and Port McNeill a number of fossil plants were secured, an interesting fact being that some of these fossils, as already discovered by Sir William Dawson, bear a close resemblance to plants now growing in Florida and Georgia, an indication that at one time the climate in the far North was similar to that of the Southern Atlantic coast of the continent. At Port McNeill a couple of men were noticed boring for coal, but with what result was not learned.

Next the party went north to Skidegate, where in dredging a specimen of the Feather Star was found, a marine plant that has not hitherto been obtained in British Columbia waters. With the assistance of a prospector named Donaldson three fine specimens of the dark bodied Shearwater (Puffinus griseus) and some tufted puffins were also obtained. The former will be a new addition to the Provincial museum, no specimens having hitherto been received there.

A great quantity of fossils of the coal-bearing cretaceous period have been brought down by Dr. Newcombe, in the hope that their examination and classification may give some practical results in information as to the geology of the district where they were found.

CHAPTER VII.

I am told by people who have been sick that the sound of the waves beating against the hull comes in time to be an intolerable torment. But had as this may be it can be nothing in comparison with the pains I suffered from the same cause as I recovered my senses. My brain seemed to be a cavern into which each moment, with a rhythmic regularity which added the pangs of anticipation to those of reality, the sea rushed, booming and thundering, jarring every nerve and straining the walls to bursting and making each moment of consciousness a vivid agony. And this lasted long—how long I cannot say. But it had subsided somewhat when I first opened my eyes and dully, not daring to move my head, looked up.

I was lying on my back. About a foot from my eyes were rough beams of wood disclosed by a smoky yellow light, which flickered on the knotholes and rude joists. The light swayed to and fro irregularly, and this adding to my pain I closed my eyes with a moan. Then some one came to me, and I heard voices which sounded a long way off and promptly fell again into a deep sleep, troubled still, but less painfully, by the same rhythmic shocks, the same dull crashings in my brain.

When I awoke again, I had sense to know what caused this and where I was—in a berth on board ship. The noise which had so troubled me was that of the waves beating against her forefoot. The beams so close to my face formed the deck; the smoky light came from the ship's lantern swinging on a hook. I tried to turn. Some one came again, and with gentle hands arranged my pillow and presently began to feed me with a spoon. When I had swallowed a few mouthfuls, I gained strength to turn.

Who was this feeding me? The light was at her back and dazzled me. For a short while I took her for Petronilla, my thoughts going back at one bound to Cotton and skipping all that had happened since I left home. But as I grew stronger I grew clearer, and recalling bit by bit what had happened in the boat I recognized Mistress Anne. I tried to murmur thanks, but she laid a cool finger on my lips and shook her head, smiling on me. "You must not talk," she murmured. "You are getting well. Now go to sleep again."

I shut my eyes at once as a child might. Another interval of unconsciousness, painless this time, followed, and again I awoke. I was lying on my side now, and without moving could see the whole of the tiny cabin. The lantern still hung and smoked. But the light was steady now, and I heard no splashing without nor the dull groaning and creaking of the timbers within. There reigned a quiet which seemed bliss to me, and I lay wrapped in it, my thoughts growing clearer and clearer each moment.

On a sea chest at the farther end of the cabin were sitting two people engaged in talk. The one, a woman, I recognized immediately. The gray eyes full of command, the handsome features, the reddish brown hair and graceful figure left me in no doubt, even for a moment, that I looked on Mistress Bertram. The sharer of her seat was a tall, thin man, with a thoughtful face and dreamy, rather melancholy eyes. One of her hands rested on his knee, and her lips as she talked were close to his ear. A little aside, sitting on the lowest step of the ladder which led to the deck, her head leaning against the timbers and a cloak about her, was Mistress Anne.

I tried to speak and after more than one effort found my voice. "Where am I?" I whispered. My head ached sadly, and I fancied, though I was too languid to raise my hand to it, that it was banded. My mind was so far clear that I remembered Master Clarence and his pursuit and the fight in the boats and knew that we ought to be on our way to prison. Who, then, was the mild, comely gentleman whose length of limb made the cabin seem smaller than it was? Not a jailer surely? Yet who else?

I could compass no more than a whisper, but faint as my voice was they all heard me and looked up. "Anne!" the elder lady cried sharply, seeming by her tone to direct the other to attend to me. Yet was she herself the first to rise and come and lay her hand on my brow. "Ah, the fever is gone!" she said, speaking apparently to the gentleman, who kept his seat. "His head is quite cool. He will do well now, I am sure. Do you know me?" she continued, leaning over me.

I looked up into her eyes and read only kindness. "Yes," I muttered. But the effort of looking was so painful that I closed my eyes again, with a sigh. Nevertheless my memory of the events which had gone before my illness grew clearer, and I fumbled feebly for something which should have been at my side. "Where is—where is my sword?" I made shift to whisper.

She laughed. "Show it to him, Anne," she said. "What a never did it is! There, master knight errant, we did not forget to bring it off the field, you see."

"But how," I murmured, "how did you escape?" I saw that there was no question of a prison. Her laugh was gay, her voice full of content.

"That is a long story," she answered kindly. "Are you well enough to hear it? You think you are? Then take some of this first. You remember that knave Philip striking you on the head with an ear as you got up? No? Well, it was a cowardly stroke, but it stood him in little stead, for we had drifted, in the excitement of the race, under the stern of the ship which you remember seeing a little before. There were English seamen on the deck, and when they saw three men in the act of boarding two defenceless women they stepped in and threatened to send Clarence and his crew to the bottom unless they steered off."

"Had I murmured, 'Good!'"

"And so we escaped. I prayed the captain to take us on board his ship, the Framingham, and he did so. More, putting into Leigh on his way to the North, he took off my husband. There he stands, and when you are better he shall thank you."

"Nay, he will thank you now," said the tall man, rising and stepping to my berth with his hand bent. He could not stand upright, so low was the deck. "But for you," he continued, his earnestness showing in his voice and eyes—the latter were almost too tender for a man's—"my wife would be now lying in prison, her life in jeopardy and her property as good as gone. She has told me how bravely you rescued her from that cur in Chesapeake, and how your presence of mind bailed the watch at the riverside. It is well, young gentleman. It is very well. But these things call for other returns than words. When it lies in her power, my wife will make them. It not today, tomorrow, and if not tomorrow the day after."

I was very weak, and his words brought the tears to my eyes. "She has saved my life already," I murmured.

"You foolish boy!" she cried, smiling down on me, her hand on her husband's shoulder. "You got your head broken in my defense. It was a great thing, was it not, that I did not leave you to die in the boat? There, make haste and get well. You have talked enough now. Go to sleep, or we shall have the fever back again."

"One thing first," I pleaded. "Tell me whether we are going."

"In a few hours we shall be at Dort in Holland," she answered. "But be content. We will take care of you and send you back if you will, or you shall still come with us, as you please. Be content. Go to sleep now and get strong. Presently perhaps we shall have need of your help again."

They went and sat down then on their former seat and talked in whispers, while Mistress Anne shook up my pillows and laid a fresh, cool bandage on my head. I was too weak to speak my gratitude, but I tried to look it, and so fell asleep again, her hand in mine, and the wondrous smile of those lustrous eyes the last impression of which I was conscious.

I was too weak to speak my gratitude.

A long, dreamless sleep followed. When I awoke once more, the light still hung steady, but the peacefulness of night was gone. We lay in the midst of turmoil. The scampering of feet over the deck above me, the creaking of the windlass, the bumping and clattering of barrels hoisted in or hoisted out, the harsh sound of voices raised in a foreign tongue and in queer keys, sufficed as I grew wide awake to tell me we were in port.

But the cabin was empty, and I lay for some time gazing at its dreary interior and wondering what was to become of me. Presently an uneasy fear crept into my mind. What if my companions had deserted me? Alone, ill and penniless in a foreign land, what should I do? This fear in my sick state was so terrible that I struggled to get up, and with reeling brain and nerveless hands did get out of my berth. But, this feat accomplished, I found that I could not stand. Everything swam before my eyes. I could not take a single step, but remained, clinging helplessly to the edge of my berth, despair at my heart. I tried to call out, but my voice rose in a hoarse whisper, and the banging and shrieking, the babel without, went on endlessly. Oh, it was cruel, cruel! They had left me!

I think my senses were leaving me, too, when I felt an arm about my waist and found Mistress Anne by my side guiding me to the chest. I sat down on it, the certainty of her helplessness and the sudden relief of her presence bringing the tears to my eyes. She fanned me and gave me some restorative, chiding me the while for getting out of my berth.

"I thought that you had gone and left me," I muttered. I was as weak as a child.

She said cheerily: "Did you leave us when we were in trouble? Of course you did not. There, take some more of this. After all, it is well you are up, for in a short time we must move you to the other boat."

"The other boat?"

"Yes, we are at Dort, you know. And we are going by the Waal, a branch of the Rhine, to Arnheim. But the boat is here, close to this one, and with help I think you will be able to walk to it."

"I am sure I shall if you will give me your arm," I answered gratefully.

"But you will not think again," she replied, "that we have deserted you?"

"No," I said. "I will trust you always."

I wondered why a shadow crossed her face at that. But I had no time to do more than wonder, for Master Bertram, coming down, brought our sitting to an end. She bustled about to wrap me up, and somehow, partly walking, partly carried, I was got on deck. There I sat down on a bale to recover myself and felt at once much the better for the fresh, keen air, the clear sky and wintry sunshine which welcomed me to a foreign land.

On the outer side of the vessel stretched a wide expanse of turbid water, five or six times as wide as the Thames at London, and foam flecked here and there by the up running tide. On the other side was a wide and spacious quay, paved neatly with round stones and piled here and there with merchandise, but possessing, by virtue of the lines of leafless elms which bordered it, a quaint air of rusticity in the midst of bustle. The sober bearing of the sturdy landmen, going quietly about their business, accorded well with the substantial comfort of the rows of tall, steep-roofed houses I saw beyond the quay and seemed only made more homely by the occasional swagger and uncouth cry of some half barbarous seaman, wandering aimlessly about. Above the town rose the heavy square tower of a church, a notable landmark where all around, land and water, lay so low, where the horizon seemed so far and the sky so wide and breezy.

"So you have made up your mind to come with us," said Master Bertram, returning to my side. He had left me to make some arrangements. "You understand that if you would prefer to go home I can secure your tendance here by good, kindly people and provide for your passage back when you feel strong enough to cross. You understand that? And that the choice is entirely your own? So which will you do?"

I changed color and felt I did, I shrank, as being well and strong I should not have shrunk, from losing sight of those three faces which I had known for so short a time, yet which alone stood between myself and loneliness. "I would rather come with you," I stammered. "But I shall be a great burden to you now, I fear."

"It is not that," he replied, with hearty assurance in his voice. "A week's rest and quiet will restore you to strength, and then the burden will be on the other shoulder. It is for your own sake I give you the choice, because your future is for the time uncertain. Very uncertain," he repeated, his brow clouding over, "and to become our companion may expose you to fresh dangers. We are refugees from England. That you probably guess. Our plan was to go to France, where are many of our friends, and where we could live safely until better times. You know that that plan was frustrated. Here the Spaniards are masters—Prince Philip's people—and if we are recognized we shall be arrested and sent back to England. Still my wife and I must make the best of it. The hue and cry will not follow us for some days, and there is still a degree of independence in the cities of Holland which may, since I have friends here, protect us for a time. Now you know something of our position, my friend. You can make your choice with your eyes open. Either way we shall not forget you."

"I will go on with you, if you please," I answered at once. "I, too, cannot go home." And as I said this Mistress Bertram also came up, and I took her hand in mine—which looked, by the way, so strangely thin I scarcely recognized it—and kissed it. "I will come with you, madam, if you will let me," I said.

"Good!" she replied, her eyes sparkling. "I said you would! I do not mind telling you now that I am glad of it. And if ever we return to England, as God grant we may, and soon, you shall not regret your decision. Shall he, Richard?"

"If you say he shall not, my dear," he responded, smiling at her enthusiasm, "I think I may answer for it he will not."

I was struck then, as I had been before, by a certain air of deference which the husband assumed toward the wife. It did not surprise me, for her bearing and manner, as well as such of her actions as I had seen, stamped her as singularly self-reliant and independent for a woman, and to these qualities, as much as to the rather dreamy character of the husband, I was content to set down the peculiarity. I should add that a rare and pretty tenderness constantly displayed on her part toward him robbed it of any semblance of unseemliness.

They saw that the exertion of talking exhausted me, and so, with an encouraging nod, left me to myself. A few minutes later a couple of English sailors belonging to the Framingham came up and with gentle strength transported me, under Mistress Anne's directions, to a queer looking wide beamed boat which lay almost alongside. She was more like a huge Thames barge than anything else, for she drew little water, but had a great expanse of sail when all was set. There was a large deckhouse, gay with paint and as clean as it could be, and in a compartment at one end of this, which seemed to be assigned to our party, I was soon comfortably settled.

Exhausted as I was by the excitement of sitting up and being moved, I know little of what passed about me for the next two days and remember less. I slept and ate and sometimes awoke to wonder where I was. But the meals and the vague attempts at thought made scarcely more impression on my mind than the sleep. Yet all the while I was gaining strength rapidly, my youth and health standing me in good stead. The wound in my head, which had caused great loss of blood, healed all one way, as we say in Warwickshire, and about noon on the second day after leaving Dort I was well enough to reach the deck unassisted and sit in the sunshine on a pile of rugs which Mistress Anne, my constant nurse, had laid for me in a corner sheltered from the wind.

Fragile Wedding Gifts.

"I hope," said the expectant bride, "that my friends will remember my fondness for fine cut glass and dower me plentifully with it on my wedding day. I think it is one of the few things in this world that are perfectly beautiful. I never tire of looking at it."

"Don't make such an injudicious wish as that," said her wisest friend, who had "been there" and knew. "You cannot hope to escape the fate of all young married people in havin' careless and incompetent servants. And just fancy how you would feel to have your wedding presents, that you want to keep all your life as souvenirs of that important event, gradually cracked and chipped off the face of the earth. Don't say that you will take care of them yourself. That is what all brides say, only to find that the time things are broken in to dusting and brushing quickly by them, and not in the mere use, which would scarcely injure them in a hundred years. Take my advice and pray for more substantial wedding gifts, even if they are not quite so daintily beautiful."—Philadelphia Press.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Regulations and Directions to Prevent the Spread of Scarlet Fever or Diphtheria.

The Medical Health Officer Made Responsible for the Due Enforcement of the By-law.

Yesterday a meeting of the city board of health was held, the medical health officer being present, at which a list of rules and directions was passed, giving information as to what must be done in cases of scarlet fever or diphtheria. There having been several cases of scarlet fever lately, it was thought best to take steps to effectually prevent any possibility of the disease spreading. Ald. Humphrey, Williams and Bragg, the printing committee, were instructed to have 5,000 copies of the following rules printed for distribution throughout the city:

Any one ill with scarlet fever or diphtheria should be isolated with a nurse in a room which meets the approval of the medical health officer. The room or rooms should be without carpet or unnecessary furniture, or clothing. No persons except those needed for the care of the sick should enter the sick-room. In cases of scarlet fever, the isolation must continue for six weeks; in cases of diphtheria, until the patient has entirely recovered.

During the illness utensils used by the sick should be well cleansed with boiling water before being used by other persons. Food left should be destroyed. All washable bed or body clothing should be boiled for fifteen minutes after being saturated in a solution of carbolic acid, 1 to 20, placed just outside the door of the infected room. The discharges from the throat and nose must be received in cups that can be disinfected, or in cloths that are to be burned. Vessels for receiving discharges from the mouth, nose, kidneys, bowels, and vomited matter, should contain a solution of carbolic acid, 1 to 1,000, or carbolic acid, 1 to 20. A sheet kept saturated in a solution of carbolic acid, 1 part acid to 20 parts water, should be hung on the inside and another on the outside of the door of the infected room. Do not use metal dishes to hold the carbolic acid, and remember this disinfectant is a poison.

Before leaving the sick room, and after all disquamation has taken place, the patient should be thoroughly washed, including the head, and fresh uninfected clothing put on, leaving everything else behind to be disinfected. Those who remain in the house where there is a case of the disease must carefully avoid contact with others, and must not go to school, church, for any general gathering, or to any house without the consent of the medical health officer.

Sec. 12, of the "Health by-law" provides that where isolation cannot be obtained at the house, or the dwelling in a thickly inhabited part of the city, the patient must be removed to the isolation hospital, provided it can be done without danger to the life of the patient.

According to section 30, in cases of infectious diseases, the medical health officer shall cause a placard to be placed on the front of the infected house in a conspicuous place, and there maintained by the occupant till the medical officer orders its removal. At the termination of the illness the infected premises must be disinfected, under the instructions of the medical health officer or by some one appointed by him. The infected room should be tightly closed, and with all its contents, fumigated for 24 hours, with the fumes of burning sulphur. In proportion of at least 3 lbs. to 100 cubic feet of air space, after all articles in the room have been so arranged as to be readily reached by the gas. Burn the sulphur over water. After fumigating the windows of the room should be thrown open and the floor and other woodwork should be thoroughly washed with a hot solution of carbolic acid, 1 to 1,000 (6 grs. to 1 gallon of water), or carbolic acid, 1 to 20. All articles of little value that have been in the room should be burned. Clothing and furnishing that can be so treated should be boiled, and other things exposed to the fresh air for several days.

Under section 24 physicians and surgeons are required to immediately notify the medical health officer in writing with the names of person or persons suffering from scarlatina, scarlet fever, diphtheria, membranous croup, whooping cough, measles, German measles, typhoid fever, smallpox, typhus fever, yellow fever or cholera.

Section 69 of the provincial act requires householders to report immediately cases of infectious or contagious diseases occurring within their families or their household, while section 14, "Health by-law," provides that any person departing from or entering any infected or quarantine house, or who shall remove anything from such place, shall be subject to a penalty of $100 or to three months' imprisonment with hard labor.

Section 86 of the provincial act states: Whenever a case of smallpox, cholera, scarlatina, diphtheria, whooping cough, measles or infectious disease exists in any household belonging to which are persons attending school, the householder shall, within eighteen hours of the time such disease is known to exist, notify the head teacher of such school or schools and also the local board of health, of the existence of such. Failure to comply with the above regulation may subject the householder to a fine of $50 and costs, or to imprisonment.

Whenever any householder or person belonging to any family, or dwelling in any lodging house, has reason to suspect or believe that any disease by which any member of the said family or person lodging in the said house is affected, is infectious or contagious, the said householder or person first mentioned herein shall notify at once some duly registered practitioner or the medical health officer, either in person or by writing, delivered at or posted to his address.

The previous resolution as to the duties of the medical health officer and sanitary inspector was rescinded, and the following adopted in its stead:

"Wherever difficulties have arisen between the medical health officer and sanitary inspector as to the extent of their respective powers under the health by-law, in cases of differences of opinion between such officers; therefore be it resolved that the sanitary inspector in all matters carry out all instructions of the medical health officer, who is hereby made responsible to the board of health for the due enforcement of all provisions of the said by-law."

FORECLOSURE OF MORTGAGE.

stent with bona fide dealing or a desire to know the true state of the title; see Agra Bank vs. Barry, per Lord Selborne (L. R. 7 H. L., at p. 157). Such conduct is always regarded by the court as evidence of a fraudulent intent to escape notice of a prior equity; and it matters not that Rowling had no particular person in view; see per Fry, L. J., when commenting on Worthington vs. Morgan, in Northern Counties of England Ins. Co. vs. Whipp, 26 C. D., at pp. 490, 492. Such being the case, if we had no registry act, the plaintiffs would now be entitled to a judgment in their favor. Whether that act warrants a different result is the next question.

One of the objects of the act "is," to use Lord Cairns' language when referring, in the Agra Bank case, to the Irish Register act, "to give a premium to diligence in registration. Another and not less important one is that the registry books shall give intending purchasers and others correct information as to the state of any given registered title; and to promote that result, as far as possible, certain definitions and rules are stated in the act for the guidance of the registrar as well as of the public."

Section 2, after defining the term "absolute fee," as used in the act, defines a "charge" to be "any less estate than an absolute fee, or any equitable interest whatever in real estate" or, "any incumbrance, crown debt, judgment, mortgage or claim to or upon any real estate."

Section 13 empowers the registrar to register the fee simple of any real estate in the name of the owner in the "register of absolute fees," but subject to this important qualification, namely—"upon his being satisfied after the examination of the title deeds produced that a prima facie title has been established."

Section 19 applies to the registration of a charge, and is, mutatis mutandis, to the same effect, the words "upon being satisfied after the examination of the title deeds produced that a prima facie title has been established" being repeated.

Section 54, which is as follows, is supplementary to both of these sections: "Upon every registration of title in favor of an owner in fee simple, mortgagee, or other person by right entitled to the possession of documents of title the registrar shall—'not may'—'require the person requiring to be registered as owner in fee, mortgagee, or otherwise'—that is to say as an incumbrancer"—to produce the title deeds of the property to which such registration may be intended to refer, unless the non-production of such title deeds or any of them be satisfactorily explained to the registrar on affidavit."

Thus, all the deeds must be produced, for if "any of them" be missing, the section says that their absence must be satisfactorily accounted for on oath.

Section 55 is in the same direction, for it provides that if a missing document required for the proof of an applicant's title be accounted for, but be not produced "by reason of its being in the possession of a mortgagee or other person who refuses to produce it, the registrar shall first give notice in writing to the holder or owner of such document of his intention to register the same at the expiration of a time to be specified in the notice."

The obvious inference from all these sections is that sequence of title is to be "evidenced," as Lord Esher expressed it, "by written instruments," and not by the official register only. The act, in this respect, recognizes and adopts the old law, and merely shifts the duty of requiring the production of the deeds from, for instance, an intending purchaser to the registrar. Of course, these observations were not meant to apply to "indestructible titles," which are dealt with separately in another part of the act.

Rowling's application was one which, on its face, demanded critical investigation on the part of the registrar. His deed was a deed in fee; hence, to quote from section 54, it was "by right entitled to the possession of the documents of title." That being so, the registrar was bound to require, for the words "shall require," their production or satisfactory explanation on affidavit for their non-production. But the deeds were not produced or even asked for; and the same was the case with respect to the certificate of title. Had the registrar complied with the section, he must have learned on affidavit, what Rowling has now stated, namely, that Miss Kearns had parted with the deeds, and had declined to state who held them; and it would be unjust to the registrar to assume that such a lame explanation would have been satisfactory to him. The explanation contemplated by the act is, obviously, one that is calculated to show that the deeds are in proper hands, say, for instance, in the hands of a prior mortgagee; and whether the mortgage be an equitable or legal one matters not, for, although the act prohibits the registration of equitable mortgages created by a deposit of title deeds, it does not prohibit their being taken.

Again, section 13, which relates to the registration of a fee, and section 19, to the registration of a charge, both require the registrar, before registering, to satisfy himself that a prima facie title has been established by an applicant, not, be it observed, by merely inspecting the official registers and the documents sought to be registered, but "after the examination of the title deeds produced." Language could not be plainer. If some, or all of them, be missing he must call for their production, as directed by section 54. In other words, the title deeds are to be the evidence, I don't say exclusively, upon which the registrar is to form his opinion as to whether the applicant has a prima facie title or not. As Miss Kearns' deeds were not produced it follows that the registrar formed no opinion, in the statutory sense, as to whether Rowling had such a title or not.

When the language of an act is clear, as it is here, it must be obeyed without more. Had the registrar observed this rule of construction the litigation would not have occurred, for, in view of what he would have learnt from the explanatory affidavit as to the missing deeds, he would unquestionably have refused to register Rowling's conveyance. Rowling, and certainly his solicitor, must be taken to have known this. The registration having been made in contravention of imperative requirements of the act must be cancelled. The breach of the act by the registrar has practically facilitated Rowling's object in endeavoring to escape notice of a prior equity, although the act, like the statute of frauds, is meant, not to facilitate, but to prevent, fraud.

As the impeached registration is to be cancelled, it follows that this case must be decided independently of the registry act, with the result that the plaintiffs are, in my opinion, entitled to an order directing the registrar to cancel the entry directed; to a declaration that their security is unaffected by Rowling's deed; and to an order of foreclosure with costs, which will include those of the first trial, as against Rowling. The costs of appeal, as I understand it, have been dealt with by the Full court.

Rowling's deed might have been "recorded," as distinguished from "registered," without reference to any title deeds by having it transcribed in the "record of conveyances," as provided in section 38. But this, obviously, would not have suited his purpose, as he would not have thereby gained the advantage of priority over unregistered securities, which a proper registration of his deed might have assured to him under section 33.

Rapid Progress of the Woodmen of the World—District Meeting of Foresters.

Social Festivities in Preparation by Several Societies—New Members of I.O.O.F.

The camp of Woodmen of the World recently instituted here met for regular business on Friday evening, Neighbor Roche, the provincial organizer, being present. He presented badges to the officers of the camp, and made an address complimenting the camp upon its large membership, which is already 130. There were four new members initiated that evening, and two applications were received. Neighbor Roche will remain in the province for some time yet, to endeavor to add to the list of camps, which have been so far established at Nanaimo, Union, Victoria, New Westminster, Vancouver and Duncan's. His intention is to continue working this side of Calgary until sufficient subordinate camps have been established to warrant the formation of a Grand Council.

Court Northern Light, A.O.F., will be the scene of a fraternal visit on Thursday next, paid by Courts Vancouver and Robin Hood. Court Northern Light has experienced a great deal of sickness during the year, no less than $950 having been paid out as sick benefits. When it is considered that, in addition to this, a doctor and medicines are provided to the members, one can realize the amount of good such a society does.

Columbia District, the executive of the Ancient Order of Foresters in British Columbia, held their annual meeting in Vancouver on Tuesday next, Oct. 10, when delegates from the various courts in the province will convene to transact the business of the order. The Victoria contingent, including the district officers here, will leave by the Charmer on Tuesday, at 2 a.m. After the usual routine business has been disposed of the delegates will elect the district officers to serve the ensuing term.

Triumph lodge, No. 1, Degree of Honor, A.O.U.W., is rapidly gaining members, the most of whom are ladies. The last social dance held by the lodge was a decided success. On Friday evening, the 25th instant, they will give a grand masquerade ball at the A.O.U.W. hall.

The Sons and Daughters of St. George have arranged for an excellent entertainment to take place in A. O. U. W. hall on Tuesday evening, the 15th. Bro. A. W. J. Gibbs will exhibit some fine views of California and a nice supper will follow, the evening to conclude with a dance. The Bantley orchestra has been engaged for the occasion.

The Primrose committee of ladies, members of the Companions of the Forest, have arranged for a social and dance in A. O. U. W. hall for Friday evening next. Richardson's orchestra will furnish the music, and a nice programme will be given. No tickets will be sold but a small admission will be charged at the door.

At the meeting last Tuesday of Vancouver Encampment No. 1, I.O.O.F., there was a good attendance. Applications from two brothers desiring to be admitted to the Patriarchal degree were received and the committee of investigation appointed.

Colfax Rebekah lodge at its last meeting conferred the degree on three candidates. At the next meeting, on Tuesday, arrangements are expected to be completed for the Halloween ball, which promises to be a most successful affair.

During the next six months the city I.O.O.F. lodges will meet at 7:30 instead of 8 p.m.

R. Roberts and J. E. Phillips, representatives from this jurisdiction to the Sovereign Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F., which met at Atlantic City, N.J., last month returned from thence a few days since.

Columbia lodge, No. 2, I.O.O.F., had only a short business meeting last week. A proposition for membership was received. The conferring of the third degree was postponed until next Wednesday evening. Tomorrow (Monday) evening the officers and members of No. 2 will pay a fraternal visit to the old mother lodge, Victoria, No. 1, and it is hoped that a good representation will be present to show respect for the old lady.

Persverance lodge No. 1, I.O.G.T., will hold an open meeting Tuesday evening, Oct. 8. Programme will consist of songs, recitations, etc. It will be at the hall on Pandora avenue.

GLANCE AT THIS MAP
Of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Rail way and note its connections with all trans-continental lines at St. Paul, Chicago, Omaha, and remember when going east that its trains are lighted with electricity and heated by steam. Its equipment is superb. Elegant Buffet, Library, Smoking and Sleeping cars, with fine reclining chairs. Each sleeping car berth has an electric reading lamp, and its dining cars are the best in the world. Some other lines are longer than this, but none are shorter, and no other offers the above luxurious accommodations. These are sufficient reasons for the popularity of "The Milwaukee." THE WORLD OF SPORT.

"Capitals" Close the Lacrosse Season With a Win From the Nanaimos.

Progress of the Golf Match at Oak Bay—A Neat Point in Road Racing.

Though somewhat one-sided, the lacrosse match between the Capitals and Nanaimos furnished an enjoyable afternoon for the spectators at Caledonia Park yesterday, when the Capitals won by 6 goals to 1 after a good-tempered, friendly exhibition of the national game. The Nanaimos were under the disadvantage of a weak team, with four juniors among them to face the champions of the intermediate series, and the goalkeeper, Fitzgerald, was handicapped by having had the end of his finger cut off in an accident only a week ago. The kindly courtesy of the Nanaimo men in consenting, under such circumstances, to come to Victoria to play for the benefit of the Jubilee hospital was heartily appreciated by the spectators, who expressed their feelings in cheering and encouraging the visitors whenever opportunity offered. The teams were the same as already published, Mr. A. E. Belfrey acting as referee, while Messrs. George Coldwell and W. Salder were behind the flags.

The Capitals were in fine fettle and started out vigorously with the result that J. Bland scored the first game in 2 1/2 minutes, and Schnoter the second in 30 seconds. These two games were almost duplicates of each other, the ball being carried at once to the Nanaimo goals and kept there.

The third game was longer, Nanaimo settling down to work and making a lively fight of it. Later for the visitors made some exceedingly clever plays on the defense, while Williams on the home field did star work. The Capitals were stronger in combination than the visitors, Campbell, Sinclair and the Blands especially distinguishing themselves in the field, and Miller, Smith and Schnoter keeping the ball hot on the flags. Miller scored this game for the Capitals in 12 minutes.

The fourth game went to Nanaimo; Williams by a pretty run got close in and passed to W. Medill, who scored neatly in 2 1/2 minutes.

The next three games went to the Capitals, who had their opponents well in hand, though occasionally the Nanaimos made things lively for them. Gibson and Lukey and H. Medill did well for the visitors during the latter part of the match.

THE SEASON REVIEWED.

TO THE SPORTING EDITOR:—The results of the past season of lacrosse must have been very gratifying to the lovers of the game in some respects, although there have been some regrettable features such as the "premature chicken counting" of the Vancouver seniors, the rough playing and ungentlemanly conduct of some of the members of different clubs and the weak team presented on several occasions by the Triangles, although Victoria has abundantly proved that with a judicious combination of Triangles and Capitals she can place the best team in the province in the field, and her prospects for a good championship senior team for 1896 are exceedingly rosy.

The formation of a provincial intermediate league has produced an abundant supply of first class material for the senior clubs of next year, of which Victoria has her full share in the champion Capitals who have only one defeat recorded against them in their series. I for one would like to see the Capitals play some of the crack intermediate teams of the East. I fancy they could hold their own against such teams and gain fresh lustre for our city. It would be difficult I think to find anywhere a team of their weight that could defeat them when at their best. Of course they have been greatly weakened by the loss of two of their best men in Harry Cooley who has gone to New Zealand, and in A. Smith who, however, may play next season.

I said at the formation of the Intermediate league that Nanaimo, considered to be the weakest team, might have a surprise in store for every one and so it has proved for they are the only team that has succeeded in defeating the doughty Capitals and that on their own ground. They have pluckily fulfilled all their engagements and have not received at the hands of some of the other clubs the same fair and gentlemanly treatment that has been accorded by the Nanaimo club this season. They will make a strong bid for senior honors next year.

The gentlemanly play and general good conduct of the Capitals at home and abroad have gone a very great way to restore lacrosse to public favor in the cities of the province. Their liabilities have all been met and they closed the season with a benefit game which put considerable into the treasury of the Jubilee hospital. CITIZEN.

THE WHEEL.

A UNIQUE POINT IN PRACTICE.
TO THE SPORTING EDITOR:—I take the liberty of asking you, as a recognized authority on wheel racing, what decision should have been given in a road race under the following exceptional circumstances. McNiven and Bennie rode in a race, and half a mile from the tape McNiven's tire burst; he left the wheel by the roadside and ran on foot to the tape, breasting it in the lead. Were the judges right in awarding the race to Bennie, who rode his wheel over the tape after McNiven had crossed the same on foot. W. F. LAWSON.

Union, Oct. 2, 1895.
[The judges were quite right in their decision, the key to which lay in the bicycle itself; if McNiven had run with or carried his mount across the tape, the Century rules, as well as those of the C.T.U., would have made it imperative upon the judges to have awarded the race to him. He abandoned his mount by the roadside, however, and though he showed admirable pluck and sportsmanlike grit he assumed the role of a footracer in a match against a bicyclist—something altogether unintended in the arrangement of the race. The liability of wheels to breakage is anticipated in the road-racing rules referred to, and which provide that the bicycle must in any event be brought to the finish by the rider in order that he may be declared a winner.]

THE TURF.

"MISSAL" A WINNER.

Mr. A. Cohen's Missal won the Duke of York's stakes at Kempton park yesterday, defeating a field of six, in which Col. J. Lloyd's Count Schomburg finished second, and Mr. C. J. Black's Rockdove third.

GOLF.

FOR THE HANDICAP TROPHY.

The first heat for the handicap challenge trophy was played off yesterday afternoon and resulted as follows:

W. E. Oliver beat C. Worsfold.
O. H. Van Millingen beat H. Combe.
C. J. Prior beat G. S. Holt.
S. F. Morley beat C. Stahlischmidt.

The entries for the second heat, which will in all probability be played off to-day (Sunday), are:

W. E. Oliver (scratch) v. C. T. Prior (rec. 10).
O. H. Van Millingen (rec. 5) v. W. Wilson (rec. 18).
W. Heaven (rec. 18) v. C. M. Roberts (rec. 18).
S. F. Morley (bye).

ATHLETICS.

CANADIAN CHAMPIONSHIP MEET.

TORONTO, Oct. 5.—The twelfth annual championship meeting of the Amateur Athletic Association of Canada was held this afternoon. The track was as nearly perfect as care could make it. The results were 1

In the 100 yards run, first heat was won by Bradley of London in a close finish, with Humphrey of Moncton second. Time 10 2/5 seconds. The second heat was won handsily by T. J. Lee, of the N.Y.A.C., J. D. Morrow, Toronto, second. Time 10 3/5. The final heat was taken by Bradley easily with Lee three yards behind. Time 10 1/5.

The 880 yards run was a pretty race between C. H. Kilpatrick, N.Y.A.C., A. W. Gifford, Montreal A.A.A. and H. S. Lyons, N.Y.A.C., Kilpatrick winning by less than a yard from Gifford with Geo. Smith, 48th Highlanders, thirty yards behind. Time 1:54 3/5 or one second short of world record. The Canadian record of 1:57 1/5 was consequently lowered.

The running high jump was won by R. Williams, of London, at 5 feet 7 inches; Webber, Toronto, second; Gill, Orillia, third.

The 16-pound shot putting contest fell to George F. Gray, N.Y.A.C., at 43 feet 9 1/2 inches, with his brother Joseph second and Duncan French, Baverston Bicycle Club, third.

The 200 yard run was taken handsily by T. J. Lee, N.Y.A.C.; J. D. Morrow, Toronto A.C., second, and R. P. Forbes, W.A.A.C., Halifax, third. Time, 22 4/5.

George W. Orton proved too much for his two competitors in the mile run; Brodie, of Montreal, made a game race, finishing twenty yards behind the victor. Time, 4:24 2/5.

The pole and high leap went to James Paire, Hamilton, at 10 feet 3 inches.

In the 120 yard hurdle race Shaw, London A.C., had a comparative walk over, with R. Williams second. Time—10 4/5.

In the 440 yard run two Canadians, Morrow of Toronto A.C., and A. W. Gifford of Montreal A.A.A., made a clipping pace from the start, and held a very decided lead throughout, finishing almost in a dead heat, the decision being given to Morrow. The time, 50 seconds, lowered the Canadian record by 1/5 second.

In the two mile run C. H. Bean, of the New Jersey A.C., made a rattling pace from the start, closely followed by Wilkins, Geo. W. Orton and Alex. Brodie lay well back till the first mile had been passed, when Brodie spurred and passed Wilkins, coming in a good second to Bean. Time, 9:55 1/5.

HERE AND THERE.

GENERAL GOSSIP OF CURRENT EVENTS.

Want of wind yesterday postponed the finals in the canoe club sailing races till next Saturday.

The Y.M.C.A. Rugby football club will meet to-morrow night to organize and elect officers. The prospects of active members are good, and a strong team will no doubt be secured.

Entry forms for the Westminster and Vancouver bicycle races on the 10th, 11th and 12th inst., can be had by intended competitors on application to the sporting editor, COLONIST OFFICE.

The practice game of Association football between the Y.M.C.A. and Wanderers yesterday resulted in a score of 2 to 1 in favor of the Wanderers. Neither club had on a very strong team, but a very good practice was had.

Ayer's Pills

"I was troubled a long time with sick headache. It was usually accompanied with severe pains in the temples, a sense of fullness and tenderness in one eye, a bad taste in my mouth, tongue coated, hands and feet cold, and sickness at the stomach. I tried a good many remedies recommended for this complaint; but it was not until I
